

In the months since the Edge Commission Report on the Future of Professionalism was published it has become essential reading for all those leading the professional institutions and for every built environment professional and educator interested in the future of their industry.

Come and hear the author of the report, former Government Chief Construction Adviser, Paul Morrell OBE, talk about the challenges facing the construction and property industries and the recommendations made in the report, Collaboration for Change, to ensure that the professions collectively take hold of the opportunities available to them.

Date & time: 6.00 pm, 28th April 2016.

Venue: The John Henry Brookes Building,

Oxford Brookes University, Headington, Oxford OX3 0BP

Programme:

6.00 - 6.30	Arriv	al wit	h light	refresh	men	ts.
					_

6.30 Introductions from Clare Deakin, Chair Constructing

Excellence, Oxford and Business Development Manager with Kier.

6.35 - 7.05 Paul Morrell, Principal Author of Collaboration for Change.

7.05 - 7.20 Questions

7.20 - 8.00 Response and action plan. Open discussion facilitated by Graham Clarkson, former CE Oxford Chair and Managing Director of The Clarkson Alliance.

Bookings should be made via Constructing Excellence Oxford's Eventbrite page.

The Collaboration for Change report can be downloaded from the Edge's website http://www.edgedebate.com